COMPENSATION:

In the cosmetology field, most graduates should average somewhere between $7 to $10 per hour starting pay with tips and retail sales being additional sources of revenue (it is difficult to determine how much tips and retail add, but some sources report it being somewhere between 10% to 20%). It takes, on average, one to three years to establish a clientele. Again, tips and retail sales provide additional revenue sources. The national average salary is $35,714. For Dayton, Ohio, the average salary is $34,125. For the esthetics field, the national average salary for 2011 is $31,765. For Dayton, Ohio, the average salary is $26,110. For the nail technician field, the national average salary for 2011 is $26,178-$35,218. For Dayton, Ohio, the average salary is $25,220-$34,972.

PHYSICAL DEMANDS:

Any profession in the beauty industry requires a certain degree of dexterity. Nearly all positions involve working with the general public, so people skills are very important. Physical strain could develop in the fingers, hands, and wrists. There is a lot of exposure to various chemicals and cosmetologists might also expect to spend a lot of time standing.

SAFETY REQUIREMENTS:

You will be working with potentially dangerous chemicals; so during certain applications, it may be necessary to wear gloves (such as while applying a perm, relaxer, or hair color), eye protection (such as while using a nail drill), or a facial mask (such as while applying artificial nails). Sanitation, diseases and disorders of the scalp, skin and nails, and anatomy represent a portion of your education to train you how to properly sanitize your equipment from one client to the next to prevent the spread of communicable diseases and disorders; which you might be exposed to from time to time. You will also learn proper use of equipment to avoid injury (such as avoiding cutting skin/ears, avoiding damaging the nail from using a nail drill, etc.).
